

Research Analyst

An analyst at FUSE Research will be a major contributor to the research agenda and a key support component for FUSE Research clients.

The analyst will be expected to contribute to the ongoing publications of FUSE Research and support the Research Directors with the development and execution of research studies and service offerings. In addition, the analyst will be expected to contribute research ideas to our different service offerings and maintain multiple client relationships.

Qualifications

- Industry Knowledge – candidate must be familiar with the retail asset management space, particularly sales and marketing practices. A minimum of 1-3 years' experience within the asset management space is required.
- Excellent written and oral communication skills
- Analytic abilities – candidate must be capable of researching, analyzing, and delivering conclusions on key issues facing our clients
- Passionate about the asset management industry and enacting change for our clients
- A proficiency in Microsoft Excel is required; advanced knowledge is a plus
- Bachelor's degree from an accredited university

About this company

FUSE Research Network is a leading edge decision support firm that employs a highly refined market intelligence capability to deliver informed, decisive, and forward-looking guidance to firms in the asset management industry. While the industry is supported by dozens of strategic consultants and data providers, FUSE's positioning is firmly in the area of tactical execution for improving the effectiveness of the sales, marketing, national accounts and product management functions.